In putting forth this testimony the writer disclaims all attempt at literary effort or effect, realizing it would be utterly out of place, even if he were able, which he is not. It is a serious matter, and therefore seriously dealt with. Utmost plainness of speech has been intentionally used. The book is for instruction, not entertainment. There has been a searching of foundations, in order that the false may be shown up and the true brought to light; that we may get down through all shifting and unstable sands of tradition to the bed-rock of God s Word, that liveth and abideth forever. The writer is not a novice, having been a believer for nearly thirty years, though with many years of most unfaithful walk, falling into grievous sin and consequent obscurity of faith and testimony. In fact, the fall into sin was occasioned largely by the existence of the very evils spoken of in this testimony; and thus, after restoration, there has been the desire to give the warning cry, for having felt..
