In the evening, a select party of ladies and gentlemen assemble in the ball-room, and continue the dance till a late hour. Latterly all the ancient customs of this day have not been strictly observed. A delightful walk of somewhat less than a mile, through park-like grounds, on the south of the town, will bring the Stranger to the banks of the LOE POOL, The largest lake in this part of the kingdom, around which the scenery is very picturesque and beautiful. The Pool is supplied by the river Cober and other streams which flow down from the adjacent country, and is separated from the sea by a singular bar of shingle, through which the water is strained. During the winter season, it sometimes happens, that the Pool overflows, and inundates the lower part of the town of Helston, and stops some mills on...
